INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30—Earl Cooper one of the favorites in the international speedway classic smashed into the retaining wall at the southern end of the track when a steering knuckle broke, but miraculously escaped injury.

Cooper was forced out of the race, reducing the field to 17. He had covered 310 miles at the time of the crash.

As the 350 miles was reeled off Dave Lewis, piloting the only front drive car in the race, was leading with Shaffer second, De Paolo third, and Hepburn fourth. The time was 3 hours, 27 minutes 23.24 seconds, an average of 101.26 miles per hour.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30—With the half way mark reached in the 500 mile race over the motor speedway today, Peter De Paolo, nephew of Ralph De Palma, was leading after a neck and neck race with Dave Lewis, Earl Cooper and Ralph Hepburn. The time for the 250 miles was 2:24:59.31, an average of 103.45 miles an hour.

The spectators at the north turn of the course were brought to their feet with a gasp when a car driven by Herbert Jones, of Indianapolis, smashed into the wall and caught fire when a rear tire exploded. The car spun around three times, but Jones escaped without serious injury, although he had to be carried to the field hospital.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30—With a roar of perfectly tuned motors twenty-two of the world's greatest race drivers shot away today at 10 o'clock in the start of the 500 mile speedway classic. Attendance at that time was about 125,000 with a steady stream still pouring through the gates.

The drivers, contesting for prizes aggregating $100,000, set a terrific pace after the first lap, indicating that they were determined to break all records for the event.

Pete De Paolo, nephew of the famous Ralph De Palma, whose car balked slightly at the start finally caught the flying field at the first lap and forged to the lead with Leon Duray second, Earl Cooper third, and Harry Hartz in fourth place. The time of the first lap was 1:26, an average of 104 miles an hour.

Officers Searching
For Mob Members

(Associated Press)

CAMDEN, Ark., May 30—Ouchita county authorities today continued their search for information concerning the identity of members of a mob which shot and killed an unidentified negro yesterday on a Camden road. The victim of the mob was charged with having attempted to attack a white woman.

Fifty odd members of the mob forced deputy sheriffs to relinquish possession of the negro, when they overtook the officers six miles from Camden. Deputies were taking him to Camden when overpowered.

The body of the negro was found riddled with bullets about a mile from the scene of the attempted attack.

The fine was $26.60.

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 30—The pluck of Lieutenant Tom Evey Dow Beeder naval aviator, in bringing his plane and passenger safely to earth yesterday after he had been seized with a heart attack, which rendered him unconscious as the plane came to rest is regarded as heroic.

Lieutenant Beeder collapsed in his seat as the plane, carrying Richard Barthelmes, movie actor, halted at the end of the flight from Norfolk to Anacostia, near here. He died soon afterward.

Barthelmes, a little shaky at the tragedy, which produced a greater sensation than any movie thriller of his career, declared Beeder had given the finest exhibition of courage I have ever seen."

He was convinced he said that the pilot was stricken before he landed.

Beeder knew "that he had a passenger behind him and he had to bring the plane in," the actor said.

Lieutenant Stone, who accompanied Beeder in another plane, declared his companion, "just came in on his nerve that's all."

As the airplane got near Anacostia, Barthelmes said Beeder waved toward the ground and the machine nosed down, came to a perfect landing, the engine continuing to run.

The actor spoke to Beeder and when there was no reply, the actor touched him. The pilot's head had fallen back and Barthelmes realized that he was ill. He summoned aid but the flier died before naval hospital physicians could revive him.

Cotton Handling
To Be Improved(Associated Press)
MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 30—Economic handling of cotton in Alabama will be greatly facilitated by the formation of associations among the ginners and warehousemen of the state here recently, according to J. H. Moore, commissioner of agriculture and industries.

The formation of such associations will help to further the understanding of the resolutions adopted by the state board of agriculture in regard to the amount of tare to be placed on each bale, and the standard method of handling cotton at the warehouse," said Mr. Moore.

"If we can get the ginner to put the standard of from 18 to 21 pounds of tare on each bale, preferably 21 pounds, and mark the bale with the standard marks of identification, there will be less difficulty for the warehousemen to do his part in handling the cotton properly when it arrives at his warehouse.

"Providing we can accomplish these things, and the forming of these associations should help in the work, the value of the stored product as collateral will rise. A banker will feel safer in lending money on a bale of cotton that he knows may be easily identified and his chances of loss are diminished."

Transaction Is Not Made Public

Another large realty transaction here, the sixth in recent weeks, was announced Saturday with completion of the transaction involving the transfer of the filling station operated by the Woco Pep company and the building occupied by the Motor Sales company.

The sale involved only the buildings and not the business of the two concerns.

J. J. Burk, former owner of the property, has disposed of his holdings to R. N. Harris and H. D. Bynum, the sale being made through the Thomas E. Price agency. The consideration was not announced, but was said to have been in the neighborhood of $20,000 to $25,000.

The sites and buildings involved are located in the heart of the comparatively new Moulton street First avenue business area. Since the paving of Moulton and First avenue this business district has built up rapidly. The building occupied by the Motor Sales company was built a year or two ago by Mr. Burk who then was engaged in the automobile business here.

The sale follows closely several other transactions in Moulton street property, Charles H. Rountree having recently bought property there from Thompson and Pettey, while W. R. Smith, a few weeks ago, bought the five store Bernstein block, also on Moulton.

Formal announcement was made Saturday of the opening of the "Airdome theater, Bank street, on Monday June 2.

The Airdome has been leased by Ferrow Himes and Murray King for the summer and they plan to open the theater with special musical and selected picture programs, they said, to be followed later by the addition of high class vaudeville.

The program for next week will include pictures and music by the "Foot-warmers," the local orchestra which has been making such a widespread reputation playing at dances in many North Alabama points.

"We expect to put on high class, clean programs," Mr. Himes said.

3 COUNTIES GAVE MUCH FOR ROADS

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 30—Automobile owners of Montgomery, Jefferson and Mobile counties gave more than $200,000 last year towards building and maintaining good roads in the smaller counties of the state through the state gasoline tax fund.

Figures for last year show that Jefferson county turned over more than $100,000 to smaller counties, while Montgomery and Mobile counties gave somewhere in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Each county in the state gets an equal amount of money for her roads from the tax funds. Coosa county, with only a few hundred cars got $25,807.72, while Jefferson, with her thousands upon thousands of motor vehicles got exactly the same amount.

There were 7,527 motor vehicles registered in Montgomery county last year, while the total for the state was 157,262. Figures compiled from statistics from the United States department of agriculture, the state tax commission and the state treasurer indicate that $10.93 was the average gasoline tax for each car in operation.

HEALTH OFFICERSMany Seek Quarters To
Augment the Money
Already Obtained

The anti-malaria campaign will be started in this section, despite the fact funds for the work still are inadequate, it was announced Saturday by Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan County health officer.

Walter (Red) Rountree, who so successfully conducted the campaign in this county last year, has been named as campaign director, under the supervision of the county health unit. Mr. Rountree will assume his duties Monday.

Dr. McRee announced that so far only $200 has been obtained for the work, but Hartselle has promised to make a contribution, while some money may become available from the Albany council. Dr. McRee also is taking up with the Boy Scouts of the community the matter of soliciting contributions of a quarter from sufficient people to insure the financial side of the movement.

The announcement that a fight will be waged on the mosquito in this section this summer will be received with elation by citizens of Albany-DeCATUR and Hartselle. The campaign last summer resulted almost in the complete elimination of the pest in these communities and, as one of the results, the public enjoyed one of the most comfortable summers in years, in addition to receiving health protection.

The Boy Scouts' interest also has been interested in the elimination of breeding places for flies, and Dr. McRee already has conducted several practical schools, in which he showed patrol leaders and their assistants how to eliminate these menaces to health.

DETECTIVE FINDS
VICTIM HIS SISTER

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 30—Vigorous search continued today for the slayer of Miss Florence Kane, who was identified by Detective James Kane, of Brooklyn, who in the course of his duties had to inspect the body.

The girl's body was found near her home. The assailant had forced his fingers down her throat in an effort to choke her screams. He battered, bound and gagged her and tore her clothing into ribbons.

Detective Kane was one of those sent to investigate. His face turned ashen as he looked at the battered body.

"I am afraid this is near home," he said. "It's my sister," he added slowly.

Detective Captain McCleskey laid a gentle arm on Kane's shoulder. "You may go home, off duty," he said.

"No" replied Kane, "I am on this case."

LIVERPOOL.—The Soviet steamer Bordinny, which visited Liverpool recently attracted much attention among British sailors not only because of its social halls elaborately furnished for all members of the crews, but also because of the long rest periods provided for the men. On all Soviet Russian ships the seamen work four hours with eight off, while the stokers do four hour shifts with a 12 hour break between their turns of duty.

The Bordinny was visited by members of the British Independent Labor Party who were shown the social halls and the sailors' and firemen's reception room, the latter of which has a Lenin corner where photographs of Lenin, Karl Marx, Rosa Luxemburg and other noted Soviet leaders are shown.

It was explained to the British visitors that Russian seamen are never without a job or a ship. If their vessels are tied up, or in dock for repairs the pay goes on regularly until they go to sea again, whether in the same or another vessel. One month's leave, with full pay, is granted annually when the seamen either visit their homes or bring their families to the port of their arrival, the expense of travel being borne by the state.

Most Soviet vessels carry an orphan boy, to those upkeep all the crew contributes. This money accumulates until the young man becomes of age, when it is for him to decide what trade or profession he will follow.

While posse searched the countryside for Harry Kirby (shown above) after the kidnaping and slaying of Miss Aida Heyward at Winthrop, Me., the keeper of a lodging house at Newburyport, Mass., exposed him to police. He protested his innocence but admitted seeing the body of Miss Heyward.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Incapacitated, mentally, by which as a result of experiences during the World War, Renshaw makes a proposition to David Campbell, wealthy, elderly man of leisure, that for a year he assume responsibility for him. Renshaw practically "buys" him. Mr. Campbell, in consideration of the proposition, which Campbell, with some natural misgivings, accepts, that the young man becomes an inmate of the Campbell household, with the natural duty of secretary. Renshaw meets Verity, Campbell's granddaughter, and gets the impression that she does not like him. Jenkins, the butler, Renshaw also feels, is distinctly hostile.

CHAPTER II.—At dinner, a guest referred to as Madame Hvoeslef, is not present. Renshaw has a feeling that the servants are spying on him. Jenkins warns him that there are "queer things" going on in the house. That night he is disturbed by the appearance on the wall of his room of a small blue circle of light. Mysterious noises in the corridor outside his door causes him to investigate, but he discovers nothing unusual.

CHAPTER III.—Campbell tells Renshaw that the household is in some respects "unusual," but makes light of his story of the mysterious sounds. Renshaw meets Madame Hvoeslef, a foreigner, with an air of mystery.

CHAPTER IV.—Madame Hvoeslef asks Renshaw to go to New York, a short journey, on a mission for her next day. During the night the blue circle reappears and the mysterious noises are resumed. Arising to investigate, Renshaw discovers he is locked in. He hears the sound of a heavy body dragging itself up to the transom of his door. When a hand appears, apparently seeking to open the transom. Unsuccessful, seeking to open the door, the hand vanishes and Renshaw hears the sound of a heavy body crawling away.

CHAPTER V.—Remembering Jenkins' warning, Renshaw tells the butler of the mysterious noises, but gets no satisfaction. Madame Hvoeslef gives him a handbag, declaring its contents are priceless, which he is to deliver to a Mr. Atkins in New York. After dressing, Renshaw again finds his door locked, but it is now completely locked. Jenkins, Renshaw delivers the bag. Hart, Campbell's chauffeur, who drove him to town, tells him Verity and Madame Hvoeslef are at the Waldorf. Remembering, he locks the door. That morning, Renshaw is vaguely uncertain about the handbag, and calls up Atkins. He learns that the bag he delivered contained only blank paper.

CHAPTER VI.—Meeting the ladies at the Waldorf, Renshaw learns that Madame Hvoeslef's property is safe, the bag he delivered being a duplicate, for which no explanation can be made. Hart gets permission to stay in town the night, probably as a substitute chauffeur. On the way home, Renshaw sends back the substitute, taking the wheel himself.

CHAPTER VII.—Despite her indifference Renshaw finds Verity becoming deeply interested in Verity. During the night he is awakened by the girl, who tells him her grandfather has had an accident and is unconscious. They get the old man to bed, and Verity remains with him. Renshaw, with difficulty convinces Verity to Renshaw a message, "Watch! Take charge."

CHAPTER VIII.—Verity is annoyed at grandfather placing Renshaw in charge, but they reach an amicable understanding, Verity being impressed by Renshaw's masterful handling of the situation.

CHAPTER IX.—Doctor Stanley visits Campbell, and departs. Jenkins, the local doctor, Morris, in charge. Stanley makes light of the mysterious episodes, as Renshaw describes them. He tells the secretary Madame Hvoeslef's property in the handbag was her memoirs, which she feared might be stolen.

CHAPTER X.—While Verity is showing Renshaw over the house, the two are locked in a clothes closet, the door slamming shut in an apparent panic, and realizing all Renshaw's efforts to open it. They are on the verge of asphyxiation when Jenkins, in great desperation, releases them.

CHAPTER XI.—Renshaw tells Jenkins he is convinced the closet door was intentionally closed, but the butler gives him no satisfaction. Their dependence on each other draws Verity and Renshaw closer.

CHAPTER XII.—Renshaw's position of importance in the Campbell household has impressed Doctor Morris. He questions Jenkins regarding Jim. Stanley tells him Renshaw is not his proper person. John R. Hall, a financial expert known to the capitals of all the world. Stanley also reveals the tragedy that has cast a cloud over Renshaw's life. Renshaw, in a talk with Verity, comes to the conclusion that he has a right to hope that his affection is, if even in a small degree, reciprocated. On his way to his room that night he is attacked.

CHAPTER XIII.—Renshaw is shown evening at the hall where several young ladies were obligated to the order.

J. B. Gurley of Hartsville was here Thursday.

Kate Winton was in Hartsville Friday on business.

Mrs. Mary Vaughn died at the home of Mr. John Lynn on route one, Friday and was buried at Shiloh today.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Garrison of Bessemer spent Wednesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Winton.

Edwin Staten of Albany was here Wednesday.

The children of Mrs. N. E. Winton are sick with chicken pox.

Miss Ruth Brindley left Friday for Albany to visit her sister, Mrs. L. W. Mitchell on her way to Florence to attend school.

Kate Winton returned home Friday from Palos, Ala., where she has been teaching school.

from him; nor could she find the memory of the words which still seemed to fill the room.

"I discovered that when there was nothing to be done you always learned that you always knew."

In saying those things she led him into battle like a knight with her glove inside his breast. For there was a battle to be fought for her and for others; and tonight clearly than ever before, the luminescence of its approach, the withdrawal with which he accepted his withdrawal held neither real nor pain.

When she rose, he walked to the living room door and opened it for her. Their eyes were held, and the look she saw in comforting as a steady light a fog, brought her reassured so to the windows of its home pulsively, perhaps apologetically she offered him her hand, and took it, both again recalled the hours in which it had found her. He pressed the hand and dro view. Then he rang the bell. There was no response. He had half-expected one. He put the shield by the still blazing fire, turned out the lights, and left the living room. On the stairs he turned to the left instead of to the right, and, opening the door of the stick room, glanced in at the resounding table there.

Old David Campbell was still lying comfortably, his eyes closed, breathing regular. In the soft glow of a shaded lamp the nurse gave absolute attention to a book.

Renshaw went back to the west with his mind at ease on that point. As he passed the closet near his room, he stopped and looked in. The knobs were still off, but discovered by a test that the door weight kept it plumb when it was closed.

He turned down the bed cover and so arranged it that to any glancing into the dim room, he would seem to be occupied. Satisfied with this stage setting for the evening of the night, he left the room, after a swift but piercing glance around him slipped into the hall closet closed its door.

His plan was beautifully simple. Anything or anyone that now came to visit him and reached his door would be pocketed in that corner, the exit being into his bedroom. He himself, leaping from his unsuspecting resting place in the closet, would be a surprise to the visitor and, he hoped, a heavy burden on the latter's neck was all well thought out and logical.

As he passed from the dark hall to the darker closet his foot struck an unlooked-for obstruction. It appeared to be a bundle, huge and hard, indeed, that the impact against its unyielding side hurt his foot, suppressed a rude word, and in next instant struck out with all strength, while he gasped and gasped, as he jerked his head backward, springing with another figure in the close limited space. Thus far, despite his plan, the other figure had all the vantage. It had not only taken wholly by surprise, but it had taken him firmly by the throat.

Chapter XIII

Four of a Kind. Renshaw's first impression was that the thing that had caught him was amazingly powerful. His next, as he struggled carried him and it past through the closet door and into the hall. It was that in the dim light it was horribly grotesque. It seemed to be hairy thing, and perhaps also a mass thing. He could not see clearly enough to be sure whether it had a mask.

Merely a strikingly repellent face. His next discovery was in a way assuring. The grasp on his throat, which, despite his efforts, he could shake off, though it was slowly strangling him—was simply the grasp of a pair of very strong human hands.

The battle, though intense, was strangely silent one. Neither fight uttered a sound. Both were down on the carpeted floor, interlocked in close grip, rolling, twisting, and straining. Renshaw felt his tongue protruding. And his eyes popping out of his head. His blood rang in his ears.

CAVES OF KENTUCKY MAY FURNISH DATA FOR SCIENTIFIC STUDY

Will the caves of Kentucky, made known to the world in a sense by Mammoth, but really made famous by the Floyd Collins case, furnish important data for American and European scientific study? Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, zoologist at the University of Kentucky, who was Governor Field's scientific representative at Sand Cave, at the time the rescuers were seeking to free the entombed man, believes that they will.

He is quoted in an Associated Press dispatch as claiming that none of the better known Kentucky caves have been entirely explored and "their extent is problematical."

"Most of them," he says, "extend for miles under the surface of the earth—passage after passage, chamber after chamber, with branches in many directions, offering rare displays of stalactites and stalagmites and dazzling surfaces of crystal and ornamental rock."

The majority of the caves were formed by the dissolving out of the beds of soluble limestones by underground waters. In nearly every section of the state, especially where there is limestone of any thickness near the surface, these caves and subterranean caverns have been found.

In the second digging to extricate the body of Floyd Collins, it was reported, a large family of vicious snakes were found "squirming and wiggling crazily" 50 feet down the shaft and the "diggers finally killed them near Collins' underground tomb. Their presence so far under ground was unaccounted for by the diggers."

Principally, however, these caves, Dr. Funkhouser is quoted as saying, are inhabited by "foxes, coons, skunks, and bats, and are used as places of hibernation by snakes, lizards, and hosts of lower forms. In former years the bears and wolves made them their dens and dragged the carcasses of their prey into their gloomy recesses to be devoured."

"Today the cattle seek the cool mouths of the caves to escape the heat and flies; a hundred or more years ago the buffalo used them for the same purpose as is mated testified by their bones."

The caves also have a very interesting fauna of their own, consisting of the blind fish, blind crickets, blind crayfish, peculiar spiders and distinct species of salamanders which are found in large numbers far under-ground but never on the surface."

In the recent second digging to extricate Floyd Collins' body from Sand Hole, after the state had closed its efforts, a large family of vicious snakes were found squirming and wiggling crazily about 50 feet down and the diggers finally killed them near Collins' underground tomb. Their presence so far under ground was unaccounted for by the diggers.

"Protected from influences of air and water, bones which have been found are a valuable record of ancient fauna, said Dr. Funkhouser. In one cave near Lexington, the bones of coons, foxes, wolves, groundhogs, skunks, a bear, a deer, and a human being, were accidentally discovered.

"Rock houses" or great overhanging ledges of rock which, like caves, afford animal shelter, were likened to those in France and Spain as having the 'most satisfactory evidences of the existence of primitive man during the glacial period and it has been pointed out that Kentucky occupies in this country the same position relative to the southern ice limit as do those countries in Europe, thus suggesting that similar archaeological data might be obtained by a study of our caves."

DEMOCRATIC PARTY NEARING ANOTHER PERIOD OF COMPLETE REORGANIZATION

Washington press dispatches state the Democratic party is about to undergo another complete reorganization. The latter is one thing the Democratic party is especially good at. The party has been organized and reorganized, every few months for several years and is no nearer defeating the Republicans in presidential elections than it was before.

Clem Shaver, of West Virginia, who was made national chairman at the behest of John W. Davis, is to step down, reports indicate, and his place may be taken by Representative Oldfield, of Arkansas, now chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

The move may be a good one, or it may be just another one of those gestures which the party's national organization frequently makes, but in the language of the cartoonists, "don't mean anything."

If the Democrats want a really capable party leader, they could do no better than to put Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, back on the job. It was Mr. Hull who erased a large party deficit and made possible any sort of national campaign in the last election. If Mr. Hull had not taken over the direction of the organization, following the defeat of Mr. Cox, we cannot help wondering how the Democrats could have waged any sort of campaign in 1924 for John W. Davis.

No one is likely to ever know why Mr. Davis and his advisers were not entirely satisfied with Mr. Hull's leadership, but they could have fared no worse, and might have fared much better, if they had left him where he was and insisted that his hand continue to direct the party helm.

The Democrats, for a long time, have experienced difficulty in perfecting a national organization which will function. When campaigns are fought in the congressional districts, the Democrats usually manage to give the Republicans considerable battle. In the national elections, many of us admit defeat before the nominations are even made.

If Mr. Oldfield accepts the leadership of the party, he faces a task worthy of his best. He must manipulate an organization which is difficult to steer, but above all, he must convince us that the party has not made another mistake, in not selecting Mr. Hull.

The Anniston Star expresses the belief that under his leadership, harmony will come. Let us hope the Star, in the following expression, is not wrong:

"In the announcement that Representative William A. Oldfield of Arkansas, is to succeed Clem Shaver as chairman of the National Democratic committee, there is promise of a party harmony and of aggressive party tactics. It is stated in Washington advises to The Anniston Star that Mr. Oldfield is acceptable as chairman to all factions and is perhaps the best man who could be selected to bring about a spirit of harmony that will mean party success in forthcoming campaigns.

"There is no criticism of Chairman Shaver's work during the last presidential campaign. It is generally admitted that he did the best he could under rather discouraging conditions. But there is criticism of Mr. Shaver's seeming inactivity since the election. Many Democrats think a national committee should function between elections as well as during campaigns; that the work done when things are quiet politically is as important as the work that is done during the heat of political battle.

AGE-HERALD SUGGESTS BIRMINGHAM KEEP A CLOSER EYE ON THE VALLEY

Members of the Louisville Board of Trade numbering 137 have been spending several days in North Alabama cities getting acquainted. Birmingham should keep a close eye on Tennessee Valley customers. They have a number of ardent wooers.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

To the people of Birmingham, for whom The Daily feels only deep affection, The Daily would humbly suggest that the advice is timely. The people of the Tennessee Valley do possess a number of ardent wooers, but Birmingham apparently is not among the number.

Birmingham, much as it is regretted, does not give a great deal of evidence of her friendship for the Valley. Mobile, even Montgomery, Nashville, Chattanooga, Louisville and other Southern cities constantly are striving to show a spirit of cordiality toward the Valley—Birmingham remains amazingly indifferent.

The Age-Herald's editorial paragraph furnishes an opportunity for a little frank talking. This discussion may not be entirely agreeable to everyone, but it may result in bringing Birmingham and the Tennessee Valley closer together. Let us hope so, at any rate.

The people of the Valley have not forgotten that during the negotiations for the sale of Muscle Shoals that the Birmingham News neglected, through indifference or down-right opposition to the offer, to lend to it any great degree of support. Of course all of Birmingham did not feel the same way about the Ford offer, but The News was considered as speaking for a large section of the Birmingham public and, naturally, the Valley resented this attitude. They believed they had a right to expect that the entire state would welcome, with open arms, the Detroit manufacturer, who could and would have done so much for the development of Alabama.

Nashville has sent several delegations of citizens into our midst to further cement cordial relations with the Valley. Louisville has done the same. Birmingham has not.

When the Tennessee River Improvement Association asks for funds with which to carry on its work for development of the Tennessee river, Nashville and Chattanooga are always found in the forefront of the fight. What has Birmingham done in years past for the Tennessee river development? What is she doing now? What does the Tennessee Valley believe she will do in the future? These are pertinent questions.

Birmingham is nearer, measured in railroad and highway miles than is either Nashville or Chattanooga, yet people in the Valley wonder sometimes if Birmingham, measured in terms of co-operation, is not as remotely removed as the moon from the northern section of Alabama.

Birmingham is big and growing bigger, but the immense amount of trade she misses in the Tennessee Valley is not helping her attain that growth. The Birmingham chamber of commerce might find the figures interesting, if that organization would care to check up on the size of the wholesale trade in this section, which Birmingham might obtain, but does not.

The Birmingham Age-Herald, since it has been under its present management, has shown a rather friendly spirit toward the Valley. The News, occasionally, has something pleasant to say regarding this section, but these printed bouquets of The News appear to be more of sops to pacify irate subscribers, or to ease the troubled conscience of the publishers. The Daily knows not which.

From every standpoint Birmingham, which is not far removed, itself, from inclusion in the North Alabama area, should be working hand in glove with the Tennessee Valley for the building up of this wonderfully endowed section of the state. The Tennessee Valley would welcome Birmingham into the work, but it requires two to make a bargain and two to complete a working compact. Any time that Birmingham desires to pitch in and help the Valley make a bigger and better Alabama, Birmingham will find the Valley meeting her more than half way.

YOUR HEALTH

Nature's Best Invention Is Your Servant, the Heart

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A LITTLE while ago one of my readers wrote for information about the heart. He wants to know how many times it beats in a minute and in a year. In fact, he would like to know all about the heart's work.

This organ, it seems to me, is the most wonderful of all Nature's wonderful inventions. It never gets tired. That is, it never gets tired if its owner does not mistreat it.

Every day and every night, all the time, from birth till death, the heart goes on with its work. But it divides its time better than its owner does. It works and then it rests. It rests more than it works. Nature has told it now to succeed at its job and the obedient heart follows directions.

This vital organ is in contraction—that is, it is working—about three-tenths of a second. Then for about four-tenths of a second it rests. The accepted day's work, is about right. It is very clear to me. However, that more than ten hours is too much daily productive work for anybody to do habitually.

Certainly, a sure, better, than any man could "gut out," has fixed for the human heart a division of rest and labor which must be the ideal. Here is what Dr. Frederick M. Rosister says about the heart in his valuable little book, "The Romance of a Living Temple."

"As an engine, the heart is a simple but marvelous machine. Without steam, without coal, with out wheel or cylinder, it runs day and night, year in and year out, seventy, eighty, it may be a hundred years. It beats on the average seventy-two times a minute. Every time it beats, it forces more than six ounces of blood into the blood vessels. At seventy-two beats a minute, in one hour it has completed at least 4,320 beats; in twenty-four hours, 103,680. Each one of these beats has at least six ounces of blood. That makes 622,880 ounces, or 25,880 pounds. Think of it! Almost twenty tons of blood lifted the same as one foot high every twenty-four hours."

A.—Weight reduction is chiefly a matter of self-control as regards diet. For full particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

F. J. W. Q.—What is the cause and cure for pimples?

A.—The diet may be at fault for this condition. For full particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

A DAILY READER Q.—Will yeast benefit a nervous, rundown system? If not, what would be helpful?

A.—Yeast is used as a tonic and purifier for the blood. Try to build up your general health and in this way benefit your entire system. For full particulars send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

WORK OF 39 AMERICAN ARTISTS IN PARIS SALON

PARIS.—Thirty-nine American artists have the honors of the annual Salon this year. They are outnumbered by the Muscovite exhibitors, but their work shows up creditably with that of the Russian refugees and other foreigners as well as with that of French artists. The limited space at the disposal of the two leading art societies required unusual severity on the part of the jury, with the result that the pictures accepted enjoy greater prestige, while it is admitted that a good deal of meritorious work had to be rejected and that the American representation suffered in quantity along with that of other nationalities.

Miss Freddie Mae Call, one of the graduates of Albany High, entertained the senior class with a farewell party Friday evening at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Alexander. Games and music were enjoyed until a late hour when punch and cake were served. The toasts were given by Louis Nebrig, president of the class, and Edward Spurlock. At the close of this delightfully spent evening the members of the class bravely smiled and bade farewell.

One of the most delightful of the many entertainments for the seniors of the Decatur high school was the dinner party Friday evening at seven o'clock given at the Lovin home on Ferry Street, with Misses Julia Lovin and Ethel Lanier joint hostesses. The living and dining rooms were thrown together and decorated in a profusion of sweet peas carrying out the color scheme of rose and silver. The place cards were miniature diplomas with fortunes inside, and tiny college caps filled with salted almonds were the favors. Those attending were Misses Morna Chandler, Pauline McMillan, Cora Gunn, Clara Bryant, Mae Jolly, Anna Thompson, Jenny Thompson, Alease Waggoner, Ethel Lanier, Julia Lovin and Messrs. Frank Dix and Bernard Beason.

ORDINANCE NO. 446

To provide for the construction of a certain sanitary sewer lateral to drain sewage from certain parts of the city of Albany, Alabama.

Section No. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of Albany, Alabama, that the said City Council has hereby determined to improve in the following manner the following Streets to-wit:

Section 1. Prospect Drive; That the sidewalks on the south side of Prospect Drive beginning at the curb line on the East Side of Sixth avenue East and extending to the West Curb line of Seventh avenue East, be paved with a cement sidewalk four feet wide.

Seventh avenue East: That the sidewalks on the west and east sides of Seventh avenue East from the South side of Prospect Drive at the curb line extending to the north roadway of Fourth street South be paved with a cement sidewalk four feet wide.

Section No. 2. That the said sewer lateral shall be constructed with all proper and necessary manholes and connections in accordance with the details, drawings, plans, specifications and estimates now on file in the office of the City Clerk, where property owners whose property may be affected by said improvements may see and examine the same, to which reference is hereby made, and which are hereby adopted.

Said sewer and appurtenances are to be constructed of brick masonry with vitrified tile pipe, as shown or described in said details, drawings, plans and specifications.

Section No. 3. The said sewer lateral is to be constructed for the purpose of draining sewage from all lots or parcels of land bounded north by Johnston street, on the South by Grant street, on the East by Fourth avenue East, and on the West by the east margin of a 20 foot alley, all in Block No. 11 of the Decatur Land Improvement and Furnace Co., Addition No. 3 to Decatur, Alabama, on a 1.00 per cent grade for a distance of 515 feet to a dead end elevation 493.15 assumed datum.

Section No. 4. That the said sewer lateral be constructed with all proper and necessary manholes and connections in accordance with the details, drawings, plans, estimates and specifications now on file in the City Engineer's office where property owners who may be affected by said improvements may see and examine the same, to which reference is hereby made, and which are hereby adopted.

Section No. 5. That the cost of construction of said sewer lateral authorized by this ordinance, shall be assessed or levied against or upon the lots or parcels of land lying within the above described district which abut upon any street, avenue or alley upon which the sewers are constructed (except the following described lots shall not be charged because they are already connected with a private sewer, viz.; Lots 31, 33, 35, 45, 47, 49 and 51, Block 11 Add. 3, D. L. I. & F. Co. to Decatur, Ala., in Albany, Ala.) by virtue of and to the extent of the increased value of such property by reason of such improvements, and not in excess of the total costs of such improvements.

Section No. 6. That the cost of construction of said improvements shall be assessed and levied upon and against the property abutting upon the portions of said streets so improved to the extent of the increased value of such property by reason of such improvements. Provided, however that no charge assessed upon and against any lot or parcel of land shall be greater than the increased value of such property by reason of the special benefits derived from the aforesaid improvements.

Section No. 7. That the cost of construction of said improvements shall be published by the City Clerk in a newspaper published in the City of Albany, Alabama, once a week for two consecutive weeks, the first publication to be not less than two weeks prior to the date set herein in Section No. 6, at which time the city council of Albany, will meet to hear any objections or remonstrances that may be made to said improvements, the manner of making same or the character of materials to be used.

Rogers Hornsby Succeeds Rickey In Card Management; Rickey To Remain On Team

(Associated Press)

ST LOUIS, May 30.—Rogers Hornsby, National league batting champion, has been appointed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, president Sam B. Redon announced today. The change is effective tomorrow.

Redon declared "Everything is friendly between Hornsby, Rickey and myself."

Rickey, whom he characterized as a great organizer, will continue to direct the business management while Hornsby will direct the play on the field.

Hornsby has led the National league in batting for the past five years and set a modern batting record last year with an average of .421. Hornsby came to the Cardinals from Texas in 1916 for a nominal sum, said to have been $500. Today he is the highest paid player in the National league. He is 29 years of age.

Alabama Power company will have a full schedule next week when they face three games. Wednesday the Power company aggregation will meet the Merrimack Mills team at Malone Park. Thursday they will engage in a city league tumult and Saturday the team journeys to Huntsville to play one of the mill teams at that point. The Power company will have to draw heavily on the twirling corps with a possibility that one man will have to hurl two of the three games. Gallagher and Bloodworth are slated for Wednesday and Thursday while it is not probable that Franklin, new southpaw, will be in shape for the Saturday game.

pointed pistols, large sums of money and imposing silence by threats and vengeance on the clerks and their families.

A few days ago, in a busy thoroughfare, a collector was assaulted and robbed of his bag containing several thousand pounds. While two men attacked the collector, others charged pistols in the most approved movie style, effectively covering the retreat of the attacking party to a side car, in which they made their escape.

As these repeated occurrences being carried out without immediate intervention of the police without arrests being made, the newspapers have censured the negligence of the police. Now, however, the authorities have arrested the principal persons implicated in the assault the collector and several other members of the Red Legion. At the same time all the newspapers print a statement from the commissioner general of police in which he protests again the injustice of the references made to this corporation. He affirms the impunity of the criminals due to the terror and cowardice of the victims who refuse to lay complaints against them.
